

Introducing Multipliers

Multipliers is a new trade type that combines the upside of margin trading with the simplicity of options trading. This means that you can leverage your trades and make more significant gains for correctly predicting market movements, without risking more than your initial stake.

How it works

Trading multipliers on DTrader is as easy as buying any other options contract on Deriv.com. It only takes three steps, and you can customise your contract to suit your risk appetite.

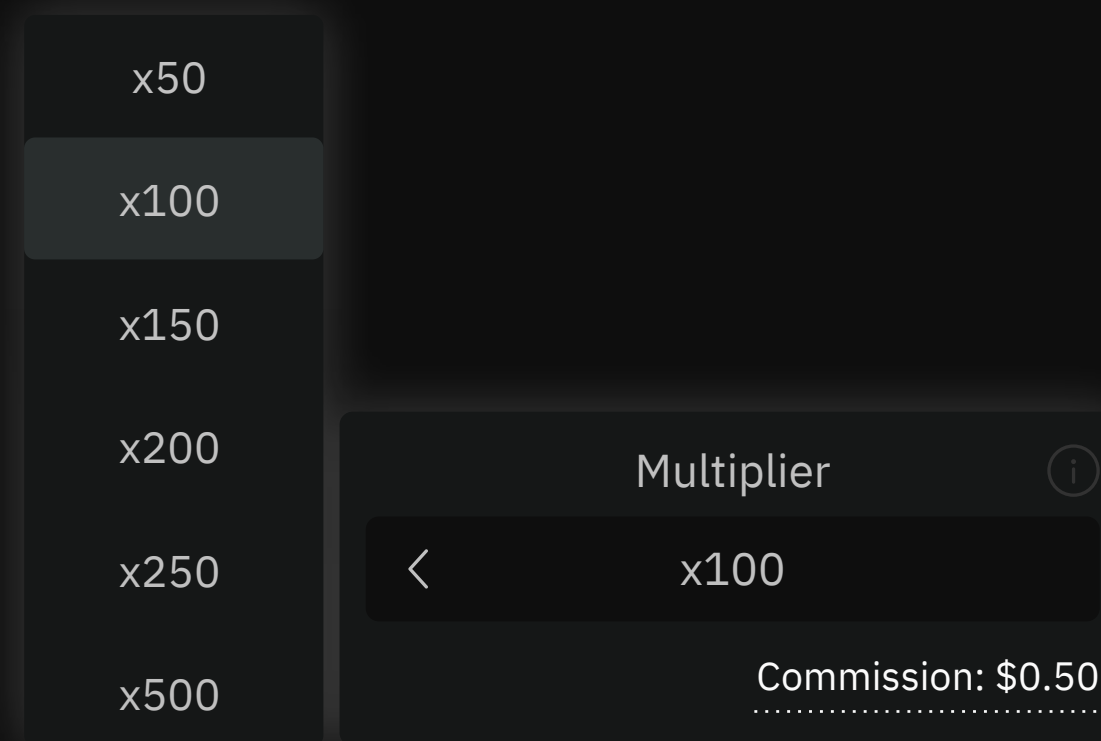

Step 1:

Set your stake

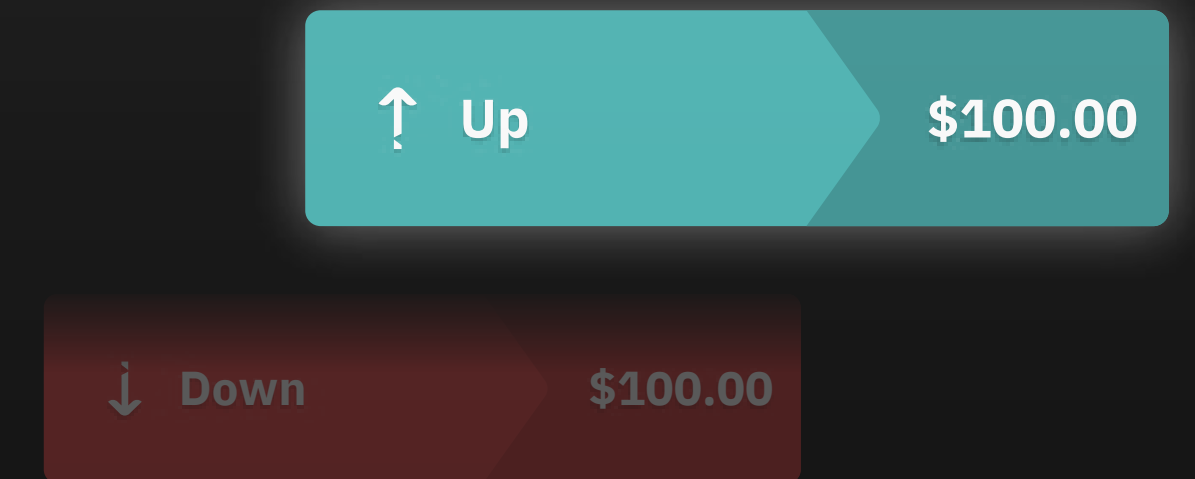

That is the amount you want to spend on the trade.

Step 2:

Set the multiplier of your choice

Multipliers range from x10 to x1000 depending on the instrument you select.

Step 3:

Purchase your contract

Choose 'Up' if you're predicting the market will go up and 'Down' if you're predicting it will go down.

More upside

With multipliers, you get the same upside as margin trading, with up to x1000 leverage. So even a small price change in your favour will be amplified by the multiplier you choose.

Limited downside

Your losses are also amplified when the market moves against you. But unlike margin trading, with multipliers, you can never lose more than your initial stake – the same limited downside as options trading.

More control

You can also set optional risk management parameters such as take-profit, stop-loss, and deal cancellation to precisely control your trade.

Stop loss

Deal cancellation

✓ Take profit:

Allows you to automatically close or sell back your contract once your profit hits a pre-set amount.

✓ Stop loss:

Allows you to pre-set how much loss you are willing to incur on a trade. With Stop loss, you can further reduce your losses to below the initial stake when the market moves against you.

✓ Deal cancellation:

For a small fee, this option allows you to cancel a trade within a set period of time and retain your stake. You can select a time-period from 5 minutes to 1 hour.
